

RECAP Ch. 10, Sec. 1: American Life Changes

In what ways did flappers represent the changes American women were experiencing in the 1920s?

Source: U. S. Census (adapted)

What does the chart reveal about American society in the 1920s?

What was the issue at the heart of the Scopes Trial? Describe the two opposing sides and their opinions.

How do White and Sabine's views on personal liberty differ?

"It is the duty of the nine people who do not overdrink, as it seems to me, to give up their liberties so far as drink goes for the good not of the one man who abuses the privilege but for the ten thousands who are his potential victims. That is the whole philosophy of prohibition."

- William Allen White, 1927

"Prohibition...has led to more violations of and contempt for law...than anything else in our national life...To tell citizens what they must or must not do in their strictly personal conduct as long as public safety is not affected is a function which government should not attempt."

- Pauline Sabine, 1929